Our visitors have been heard to say frequently that "we live in a very wet climate." We hope they will return during the summer months in order that the erroneous idea may be dispelled. MESSES. WILLIAMS & Co., has sent to this office, a sailed on Monday last, per steamship Zealandia, on their way to Washington. Also Hon. H. A. P. Carter left these shores with a commission as Minister Resident at Washington. Miss Helen S. Judd accompanied Mr. Carter.

Monday last was a Government holiday, and the schools as well as the Government officers were closed. In the case of the former it might very judicionsly have been extended for a week, in order to permit of the juveniles participating in the festivities of the week. A PAMHHLET issued yesterday from the Gazette office informs the public that it is " By our own

Reporter," and in reporting the unveiling of the Statue, also says the report is taken from the columns of the P. C. ADVERTISER. These statements are rather paradoxical. In all probability the Coronation fireworks will take place this evening. Up to a late hour last night there was every indication of fine weather, and should it continue propitious throughout to-day, the signal announcing the event will be fired at two o'clock this afternoon.

The drawing of Mr. McInerny's Grand Christmas Lottery took place on Saturday evening last with the following result: The 1st was won by Mr. F. S. Pratt, No. 209; 2nd, No. 897; 3rd, 178; 4th, 621; 5th, 52; 6th. 455; 7th, 387; 8th, 14; 9th, 48; 10th, 303; 11th, 808; 12th, 693; 13th, 406.

We beg to draw attention to the important notice regarding the proposed illumination and fireworks in connection with Coronation festivities. The unsettled state of the weather makes it doubtful when this event will take place, as to enunra success fine weather is indispensable WE regret to learn that Mr. Henry Cornwell had a relapse immediately on his return home last week. It is of a decidedly worse nature than the first attack, and doubts are entertained of his re-covery. Mr. W. H. Cornwell was prevented from attending the Coronation ceremony in consequence of his father's severe illness.

HIS MAJESTY'S vacht Healani was successfully launched yesterday afternoon from the wharf opposite Mr. Sorenson's workshop. The work was adroitly managed, and the yacht looks prettier in the water than she did on the stocks. The masts, spars and sails, for this craft are all in readiness, and she will very shortly be in order to display her Owing to the deplorable condition of the road

A LADY whose name or address we do not know. but who claims to belong to the I. O. G. T. telephoned to our office yesterday afternoon, expressing her regret and disappointment at not finding the Good Templars recorded in a pamphlet as having attended the Coronation. On being assumed that all Lodges and Societies are recorded in the P. C. ADVERTISES Co., she discovered her error and found that the pamphlet she had, was the production of a a neighboring office and not of the P. C. A. The last words heard through the telephone were, "I am determined to have one of yours, no matter what it costs." It is just possible that in trans-mitting the order, the lady rung up 88 instead of 78.

THE unfortunate man Hinckley, who fractured his leg by a fall from the balcony of the Reforma-tory School, (and whose care led to a well-remembered law-suit in which his me lical attendants Drs. Rodgers and Fitch were successful as defendants.) has had an operation performed on his leg since his return to San Francisco by which the true cause of non-success in securing a re-union of the fractured bones has been explained. It turns out that a piece of the flesh of the leg had intruded between By referring to our Police Court record, it will the broken ends of the bone and prevented a cure, be seen that not a case of drunkenness was dock.

This is one of those casualties which were enumerated by medical witness at the trial as probable causes of the non-union of the bones, and its existence could not have been detected without the operation which has just been performed. The medical attendants of Hinckley are to be congratulated on this full confirmation of their defence.

THE criminal record of last Tuesday's Police Court roceedings shows sixty-two cases of drunks, affrays and assaults. This covers the offenses of Saturday, Sunday and Monday, the majority being ar-rested on the last named day. Of those who put in an appearance, the greater portion were youths under 20 years of age. The scenes on Nuuanu street at the corner of Hotel on Monday afternoon were of a very demoralizing character. The lib-erty conferred on the native Hawaiians by the new liquor law was certainly abused on that day, and it is questionable, whether or not, if the A NEW building is being erected at the corner of law had been strictly enforced, the saloon keepthe barkeeper, who had contributed in a large measure to the cause of his victim's helplessness.

NEAR to the entrance of Mr. Simon Kaai's house on King street, there is a very dangerous hole, This ought to be repaired at once before an accident happens.

An unexampled case of mistaken identity occurred in the Police Court on Tuesday morning. Among the numerous "drunks" was a white man, who pleaded "not gullty," adding, in a continental accent, that he had "never been drunk in his accent, the had "never been drunk in his accent, that he had "never been drunk in his accent, that he had "never been drunk in his accent, the had "never been drunk in his accent, life." He was consequently put upon his trial. The prosecuting witness, a native policeman, on being sworn, stated that on Monday night his attention was drawn to a house near Kaumakapili Church by a white woman, who informed him that her crockery, glassware, and furniture had been the late rains, the omnibus has been running on broken and smashed up by the accused, who on King street for the past few days, but now both was drunk. The constable further testified to arresting him and bringing him to the Police Station. The defendant disclaimed all knowledge of the affair, and added that he had been an inmate of the Station-house since Saturday last, having been given in charge by the Captain of the Revere, to which vessel he belonged. This astonishing statement caused a got locked together in an inextricable manner on closer scrutiny of his personal appearance, which, Fort street opposite Mr. May's store. In less than a minute the immense traffic on this street was apparent. Vehicles of all descriptions were brought is a "new hand;" but this serious mistake ought to to a stand. Eli Perkins on Women Masons.

Eli Perkins is a Royal Arch Mason, and at a Masonic celebration in Washington be undertook to answer the question " Why Women Cannot be Women sometimes complain that they are not permitted to enter the lodge and work with the craft in their labors, and learn all there is to be learned in the institution. I will explain the reason. I learn that before the Almighty had finished His work He was indoubt about creating Eve. The creation of the living and creeping things had been accomplished, and the Almighty had made Adam, who was the first Mason, and created for him the finest lodge in the world, and called it Paradise No. 1. [Laughter.] He then called all the beasts of the field and fowls of the air to pass before Adam, for him to name them, which was a piece of work he had to do alone that no confusion might thereafter arise from Eve, who He knew would make trouble if she was allowed to participate in it, if he created her beforehand. Adam being Senior Warden, placed Eve as the pillar of beauty in the south, and they received their instructions from the Grand Master appointed magistrates. The "wild judiin the East, and when finished, she immediately called the craft from labor to refreshment. Instead of attending to the duties of her office as she ought, she left her station, violated her obligation, and let in an expelled Mason, who had no business there, and went around with him, leaving Adam to look after the jewels. This fellow had been expelled from the Grand Lodge, with several others, some time before. Finding that Eve was no longer trustworthy, and that she had let one in whom he had expelled, the Grand Master closed the lodge and turned them out, setting a faithful tyler to guard the door with a flaming sword. Adam repented of his folly and went to Ellenborough. A young lawyer, trembling with work like a man and a good Mason, in order to fear, rose to make his first speech, and began: get reinstated again. Not so with Eve! She "My Lord, my unfortunate client-my Lordgot angry about it, and commenced raising Cain, my Lord-my unfortunate client-my Lord-" and did it again when she got Abel. [Laughter.] "Go on, sir, go on," said Lord Ellenborough; Adam, on account of his reformation, was permitted to establish lodges and work in the deCourt is entirely with you." grees, and while Eve was allowed to join him in his works of charity on the outside, she was never again premitted to assist in the regular work of the craft. Hence the reason why a woman cannot become an inside Mason.

Success does not consist in never making blunders, but in never making the same one a second

SUPPRIE CALES

"I feel as if I were fated to die on this beautiful river," said a young English actress, as she talked to a comrade on the deck of a Hudson River steamboat. A week later, going from Albany to New York on the Oregon, she was suddenly taken ill, and died off West Point, on the most beautiful part of the river she so much admired. Other players have had presentments justified by the event, or the author of " Thirty years in Gotham," to whom we stand indebted for the following histronic examples, sadly deceives us :-

was also a dramatist in a modest sort of way, found it so difficult to arrange the details of a piece which he called "The Mail Robbers " exactly to his mind, and he observed to a friend that the play would be the death of him. A day or two afterwards he rode out of town to survey the surroundings of the place where he had laid the chief scene of the drama, and was thrown from his pleaded not guilty, but was convicted and fined horse, escaping with a bruised shoulder. $10, $1 costs, and sentenced to 20 days' impri- Congratulating him upon coming off so lightly, his friend joked him about his presentiment, but the actor was not to be laughed out of his notion, and persisted that In a part he was then playing Chapman had to wear a suit of brass armour, and the night being very hot he discarded his underclothing altogether. The armor chafing the bruised shoulder, some verdigris got into the wound and poisoned it, and of that poisoning he died.

"Fulfil your engagements like a sensible creature," was the well-meant advice of Mdlle, Louisette's confidante, hen that tight-rope dancer consulted her upon the advisability of cancelling an agreement to appear at the Volks Theatre, in New York, fatal one. Sure enough it was so. Her first appearance was her last. She went through the performance without a hitch, but as she was stepping from the cross-trees to the stage, her gauzy dress caught fire at the footlights' and before help reached her she was so badly burnt that medical skill was of no avail.

There is nothing repulsive about a gold watch, yet when Sheppard the actor took one from his mother's hand as her birthday gift, he shuddered without knowing why, except that he felt it was destined to bring him misfortune. He wore it, however, out of respect for the giver, and wore it for years without anything unpleasant coming of it. One night, when he was playing at the National Theater, the house took fire while girl, dead or alive. he was on the stage. Sheppard got safely into the street, and then remembered that his watch was in his dressing-room. Unwilling to lose the memento of his dead mother, he went back to the theater, and was never seen alive again. His charred

At an inquest upon the body of a collier who was killed by the falling of a rock in a Staffordshire mine, his wife deposed that the night before the accident her husband woke complaining that he had a ton of rock upon his head; and so sure was he of some il OFFICE AT C. E. WILLIAMS, FORT STREET, befalling him that it was only by dint of much coaxing that she persnaded him to go to work. Before leaving the house he bent down to her child saying. "Let me have my last kiss!" To make the story still stranger it came out in evidence that the poor fellow's death had hardly reached his home when a cousin, much attached to him, looked in to inquire for him, impelled to do so by seeing, or by thinking he saw, the dead man standing before him in the roadway .- All the Year Round. Who the Original Judge Lynch Was.

If such a person ever really existed-is a mystery. The earliest date assigned to this exhibition of a developed "iron conscience" is, according to the "Galway Council Book" the year 1498, when an Irishman, in municipal authority in the county of Galway, and named James Lynch, hanged his own son out of a window for despoiling and mur-dering strangers, "without martial or common law, to show a good example to posterity." Another ancestral derivation is to be found in one Lynch, who, about 1687, was sent to America to suppress piracy. As justice was not administered with much rigor or formality in the colonies," owing to the difficulty of adhering to the usual forms of law in the newly-fashioned territories, it is presumed that this Judge Lynch was empowered to proceed summarily against the pirates, and thus originated the term. The opinion which traces the expression to a Mr. Lynch, founder of the town of Lynchburgh, in Virginia, is entirely unsupported by any authority beyond identity of name; but it is curious to remember that so long ago as the reign of our Richard II., there was current a doggerel distich, "First hang and draw: Then hear the cause by Lydford Law." This may have been akin to the historic "Gibbet Law of Halifax," which was in practice down to the times of the Protectorate, but which, summary as was ciers" of the United States carry out their measures without any kind of authority or prescription.

An old peasant on the south shore of Long Island was telling a visitor how pleasant it was "But," asked the friend, slapping his face with his handkerchief, "don't you have a great many mosquitos and sandflies?"
